PREMIUM PROTEIN BRAND

01 / VSL A — I WANT THE PROTEIN, NOT THE SHAKE

Chocolate Protein Smoothie | Story-driven direct response | Target ~4 minutes

STRUCTURE: Hook → Problem → Agitation → Mechanism → Solution → Proof → Offer → CTA

CORE INSIGHT: Consumers want protein, but dislike chalky texture and unpleasant taste. Sell a genuinely enjoyable smoothie experience using real sensory proof.

SCENE 1 — HOOK | 0:00–0:20

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
"If you're still forcing yourself to finish chalky protein shakes, I want to show you another option." "Because I want the protein. I want something convenient. But I don't want to feel like I'm drinking chocolate-flavored chalk every morning." "And apparently, I'm not the only one."	VISUAL / EDITING Creator holds shaker in kitchen. Disappointed sip; hard cut to appealing chocolate smoothie pour. TONE Relatable, lightly humorous. PROOF / INSERTS Show real finished product in first 10 seconds. ON-SCREEN TEXT I WANT THE PROTEIN. NOT THE CHALK.

SCENE 2 — PROBLEM | 0:20–0:50

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
"You buy a protein powder because you're trying to make better choices." "Maybe you're working out. Maybe you're trying to get more protein into your day. Or maybe you just want something quick before heading to work." "But then you actually have to drink it." "It's too watery. Too thick. Too sweet. Or it leaves that weird aftertaste." "And suddenly, the thing you bought to make your routine easier becomes another thing you have to force yourself to finish."	VISUAL / EDITING Clumping powder, watery shake, overfilled blender, complicated label, unfinished shaker. ON-SCREEN TEXT CHALKY TEXTURE • WEIRD AFTERTASTE • ANOTHER CHORE

SCENE 3 — AGITATION | 0:50–1:15

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
"And here's what bothers me." "Why should getting your protein in mean settling for something you don't even enjoy?" "You spend money on a product because you want to use it consistently." "But if you dread drinking it, how long is that routine really going to last?" "I don't want another shake I have to convince myself to finish. I want one I actually look forward to."	VISUAL / EDITING Unfinished shaker on counter; creator rushing through morning. ON-SCREEN TEXT YOUR ROUTINE SHOULDN'T FEEL LIKE PUNISHMENT.

SCENE 4 — MECHANISM | 1:15–1:55

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
"That's what caught my attention about [BRAND NAME]'s Protein Smoothie." "It's not positioned as just another basic scoop of whey." "The formula combines whey protein with collagen and additional smoothie ingredients, bringing them together in one convenient powder." "And the idea is simple." "Instead of building a smoothie from scratch every morning, you can prepare one with a scoop, your choice of milk or water, and a shaker." "No measuring five different ingredients. No complicated recipe. And no blender to clean afterward."	VISUAL / EDITING Redacted pouch reveal, one scoop, actual ingredient label, shaker demonstration. PROOF / INSERTS Show exact label values; do not add protein and collagen gram amounts together. ON-SCREEN TEXT PROTEIN + COLLAGEN + SMOOTHIE INGREDIENTS

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
“Now, I know what you’re thinking.” “Okay, it looks good. But does it actually taste good?” “And that’s a fair question, because we’ve all seen protein powders that look amazing in an ad and taste completely different at home.” “That’s why I wouldn’t just take a brand’s word for it.” “Look at the actual mixing demonstration. Look at what verified customers are saying about the flavor and texture.” “And check out the flavor-swap guarantee, because choosing a protein powder shouldn’t feel like such a gamble.” “Taste is personal. AB test structure (VSL B vs VSL C)

02 / VSL B — YOUR MORNING SMOOTHIE, WITHOUT THE BLENDER

Pumpkin Spice Latte Protein Smoothie | 5P + Objections | Target ~4–5 minutes

STRUCTURE: Promise → Pain → Proof → Plan → Picture → Unique Thing → Three Objections → CTA

CORE INSIGHT: Ingredient-conscious consumers want a substantial smoothie without grocery planning, blending, measuring, and cleanup. Sell convenience and ingredient clarity, not a medical or complete-meal claim.

SCENE 1 — 5P INTRODUCTION | 0:00–0:55

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
"PROMISE — Imagine having a delicious pumpkin-spice protein smoothie ready in just 30 seconds. Twenty-five grams of protein, real pumpkin ingredients, and that cozy pumpkin-spice flavor. Without even touching a blender." "PAIN — Because we all love the idea of making a nutritious smoothie in the morning. But going grocery shopping, cutting fruit, measuring ingredients, blending everything, and then cleaning up? Who has time for all that before work?" "PROOF — That's why I want to show you [BRAND NAME]'s Pumpkin Spice Latte Protein Smoothie. It's an all-in-one smoothie formula with protein, collagen, real fruit powders, and pumpkin-spice ingredients." "PLAN — Just add one scoop to your shaker, pour in your favorite milk or water, shake for 30 seconds, and you're done." "PICTURE — Imagine waking up tomorrow knowing your smoothie is already taken care of. No blender. No complicated recipe. Just a delicious pumpkin-spice smoothie that fits into your morning."	VISUAL / EDITING Autumn kitchen. Alarm and rushed morning. Finished smoothie pour, pumpkin/spice imagery, shaker. ON-SCREEN TEXT YOUR PUMPKIN SPICE SMOOTHIE. NO BLENDER REQUIRED.

SCENE 2 — UNIQUE THING | 0:55–1:35

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
"Now, here's what makes this different." "Most people think of protein powder as something you add to a smoothie." "But what if the protein powder already had the smoothie ingredients inside?" "That's exactly the idea here." "You get grass-fed whey protein and collagen." "Organic banana and pumpkin powders. Coconut milk powder and MCT oil powder." "Real cinnamon, nutmeg, and espresso for that	VISUAL / EDITING Overhead ingredient layout matched to actual packaging; grouped ingredients, then real shaker prep. PROOF / INSERTS Confirm exact ingredients against final SKU label. ON-SCREEN TEXT A SMOOTHIE FORMULA. NOT JUST A SCOOP OF WHEY.

pumpkin-spice latte flavor." "Plus the additional ingredients listed right on the package." "Instead of gathering everything yourself, the formula brings those ingredients together in one scoop." "And that's the difference. You're not just buying protein powder. You're buying the convenience of a ready-to-mix smoothie."

SCENE 3 — OBJECTION 1: WHY NOT REGULAR WHEY? | 1:35–2:10

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
"Now, you might be thinking, Why wouldn't I just buy regular whey protein?" "And you absolutely can." "But here's the difference. Regular whey is mainly about getting your protein in." "This is designed to be something more substantial." "An all-rounded, nutrient-containing smoothie with protein, carbohydrates, fats, and real food-derived ingredients already combined." "Think about those busy mornings when you don't have time to sit down and prepare breakfast." "Instead of skipping it or grabbing whatever's available, you have a convenient smoothie that could become part of your breakfast routine—and, depending on your nutritional needs, occasionally stand in for a meal." "No blender. No recipe. No extra preparation. Just one scoop, and you're on your way."	VISUAL / EDITING Split-screen conventional whey shake vs pumpkin smoothie; compare real nutrition panels. PROOF / INSERTS Compare calories, protein, carbohydrates, fat and fiber with verified SKU. Avoid calling this a nutritionally complete meal. ON-SCREEN TEXT MORE THAN A PROTEIN SHAKE.

SCENE 4 — OBJECTION 2: WHAT ABOUT INGREDIENTS? | 2:10–2:55

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
"Here's something I wish more people did before buying protein powder." "Turn the package around." "Because the front tells you what the brand wants you to see. But the back tells you what's actually inside." "Some protein powders use ingredients like sucralose, artificial flavors, xanthan gum, or carrageenan."	VISUAL / EDITING Turn two actual packages around. Real side-by-side ingredient labels, readable and legible. PROOF / INSERTS Must select a real comparator SKU containing named additives; show milk

“Now, that doesn’t automatically mean those products are unsafe.” “But if you’re someone who prefers particular sweeteners or wants more recognizable smoothie ingredients, those details matter.” “And here’s what I like about this formula.” “You can actually see ingredients such as organic pumpkin powder, banana powder, coconut milk powder, cinnamon, and nutmeg listed on the label.” “It uses stevia and monk fruit for sweetness. And you can see the protein sources, too.” “So instead of relying on a big healthy claim on the front, compare the actual ingredient lists.” “Know what you’re putting into your smoothie. And choose the formula that fits your priorities.”	allergen and caffeine disclosures. Do not characterize permitted additives as harmful without evidence. ON-SCREEN TEXT FLIP THE BAG. READ THE INGREDIENTS.

SCENE 5 — OBJECTION 3: IS IT WORTH $59.99? | 2:55–3:40

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
“And I know what you’re thinking. Fifty-nine ninety-nine for a bag of smoothie powder?” “Fair question.” “But think about what goes into making your own pumpkin-spice protein smoothie.” “First, you’ve got to go grocery shopping. Buy your protein, fruit, pumpkin, milk, spices, and whatever else you like adding.” “Then you have to bring everything home, store it, measure it, and prepare it.” “And once you’re done? You’ve still got the blender, utensils, and countertop to clean.” “Now, making your own smoothie can absolutely be cheaper, especially if you already have the ingredients.” “But what’s your time worth?” “With [BRAND NAME], the ingredients are already combined. Twenty servings for $59.99.” “That’s about three dollars per serving before adding your liquid.” “No extra grocery run just to assemble your smoothie	VISUAL / EDITING Grocery store trip, shopping basket, ingredient storage, blending, dishes; cut to one-scoop shaker. recipe. No blender to wash. Just scoop, shake, and enjoy."

"And if you're not ready to commit to a full-size bag, the brand also offers single-serving variety options and a starter kit so you can explore different flavors first."

"Because sometimes, convenience is worth paying for."

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER

"So here's what I want you to remember."

"You don't need to turn every morning into a meal-prep session just to enjoy a nutritious smoothie."

"With [BRAND NAME]'s Pumpkin Spice Latte Protein Smoothie, you're getting an all-in-one smoothie formula with 25 grams of protein per serving, collagen, real pumpkin-spice ingredients, and the convenience of preparing it in just 30 seconds."

"Twenty servings. Just $59.99 at the regular one-time price."

"And if you want to explore the brand's flavors before committing to a full bag, check out their single-serving variety options and starter kit."

"Now imagine tomorrow morning."

"You're getting ready for work. Your smoothie takes 30 seconds."

"And instead of rushing around the kitchen, you've got one less thing to worry about."

03 / VSL C — YOUR MORNING SMOOTHIE, WITHOUT THE BLENDER

Pumpkin Spice Latte Protein Smoothie | Story-driven direct response | Target ~4–5 minutes

STRUCTURE: Hook → Problem → Agitation → Mechanism → Solution → Proof → Offer → CTA

CORE INSIGHT: Ingredient-conscious consumers want a substantial smoothie without grocery planning, blending, measuring, and cleanup. Sell convenience and ingredient clarity, not a medical or complete-meal claim.

SCENE 1 — HOOK | 0:00–0:25

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
Give me thirty seconds. I'm going to make a pumpkin spice protein smoothie. No blender. No chopping. No complicated recipe. Ready? Start the timer.	VISUAL Close-up: powder, shaker and liquid on counter. Timer appears and starts. One continuous preparation shot: liquid, serving of powder, shake, pour. No manipulated timer. ON-SCREEN TEXT 30-SECOND SMOOTHIE CHALLENGE NO BLENDER. NO CHOPPING.

SCENE 2 — PROBLEM | 0:25–0:55

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
Now, that was easy. But if you've ever tried making a smoothie from scratch before work, you know it's usually not that simple. You want something more substantial than coffee. Something with protein. Something that tastes good, with ingredients you recognize. So you decide to make smoothies every morning. Until you have to buy the ingredients, keep everything stocked, measure everything, blend it, and clean up afterward. And when you're already running late, that routine is the first thing you skip.	VISUAL Cut from the finished drink to a counter with banana, milk, yogurt, protein powder, spices and blender. Creator checks the time. ON-SCREEN TEXT GOOD INTENTIONS. NOT ENOUGH TIME.

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
And that's the frustrating part. It's not that you don't care about what you're eating. You do. But your mornings don't always cooperate. One day you skip breakfast. The next, you spend more than you planned on something convenient. And when you finally have time to make a smoothie at home, you're dealing with half a dozen ingredients and a blender full of dishes. So the routine you wanted to make mornings easier somehow becomes another chore. And eventually, you stop doing it. Not because you don't want a better breakfast, but because the process doesn't fit your actual life.	VISUAL Split screen: leaving with only coffee versus measuring ingredients and washing blender; cut to purchasing a drink on the way to work. ON-SCREEN TEXT THE PROBLEM ISN'T MOTIVATION. IT'S THE ROUTINE.

SCENE 4 — MECHANISM | 1:30–2:10

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
Here's what changed the way I think about morning smoothies. Most people compare smoothie powder to regular protein powder. But they're not necessarily trying to do the same job. A conventional protein powder is usually built around delivering protein. And that's fine if that's what you need. But when I want a morning smoothie, I'm looking for more than that. That's the idea behind [BRAND NAME]'s Pumpkin Spice Latte Protein Smoothie. It combines grass-fed whey protein, collagen, banana and pumpkin powders, coconut milk powder, MCT oil powder, warming spices, and espresso in one mix. Instead of gathering everything separately, you've got the ingredients together in one convenient powder. And you don't need a blender.	VISUAL Ingredient laydown and accurate package label. Move from individual ingredients to a scoop of smoothie powder. ON-SCREEN TEXT MORE THAN A BASIC PROTEIN SHAKE. PRODUCTION Do not imply all conventional protein powders lack other ingredients. Confirm ingredient list against current SKU.

SCENE 5 — SOLUTION | 2:10–3:00

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION

Now let me show you how simple this is.

Grab your shaker. Add your preferred liquid. Add a serving of the Pumpkin Spice Latte smoothie mix. Shake it up. And you're done.

No blender. No chopping. No pile of ingredients on the counter. No blender jar waiting to be washed.

Each serving provides 25 grams of protein, including 10 grams of collagen within that amount.

Plus, ingredients like banana, pumpkin, coconut milk, cinnamon, nutmeg, and espresso.

Think creamy pumpkin spice with a coffee-shop-inspired twist.

It's the kind of smoothie you can make while you're getting ready for work, instead of building your whole morning around breakfast.

It's not automatically a complete meal for everyone. Depending on your needs, it can be a convenient breakfast option or part of a larger breakfast.

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER

Now here's where the difference becomes obvious.

Let's make two smoothies.

On this side, we're making one from scratch. We've got our ingredients, our blender, and everything to clean afterward.

On this side, we're making [BRAND NAME]'s Pumpkin Spice Latte smoothie.

Same morning. Two different preparation routines. Watch.

One requires washing, measuring, blending, and cleanup. The other? Liquid, powder, shake, and you're ready.

That doesn't mean a homemade smoothie is bad. If you enjoy making one from scratch, that's great.

But when you're short on time, convenience matters.

And if you're wondering about the ingredients, turn the package around. Read the actual list and compare it with what you're currently using.

PRODUCTION

Do not slow the homemade version artificially or imply the two drinks are nutritionally equivalent. Obtain permission for reviews.

When it comes to taste, look at verified reviews from people who've tried this specific flavor.

The point isn't that every smoothie needs to come from a powder. It's that a routine only works if you can realistically stick to it.

DIALOGUE / VOICEOVER	VISUALS · TEXT · PRODUCTION
So here's what you can get. [BRAND NAME]'s Pumpkin Spice Latte Protein Smoothie. Twenty servings per container. Twenty-five grams of protein per serving. A blend of smoothie ingredients with pumpkin spice and espresso flavor, in a shaker-friendly format. At approximately sixty dollars per container, that's around three dollars per serving. And if you're not ready to commit to a full container, the brand offers smaller variety and starter options for selected products. Check which flavors are included before ordering. The goal isn't to buy another product that sits unused in your kitchen. It's to find something you'll actually want to make.	VISUAL Hero product and finished smoothie; simple offer-stack overlays. ON-SCREEN TEXT 20 SERVINGS · 25G PROTEIN · APPROX. $3/SERVING PRODUCTION Verify price, availability and serving count.
